ABOUT ME

As a student deeply invested in the study of the science of history, including its relationship to politics, economics, and society, I am very aware of the role that anyone with in-depth knowledge of these fields possesses. I am eager to contribute to the continued development of these principles and to engage in the formation of policies that reflect the democratic values of the country. My academic journey has equipped me with the analytical skills and critical thinking necessary to have a nuanced understanding of political and social issues.
